1 Wilson's Snipe

flushed from drainage ditch adjacent to former fairway (18th?). Initially thought it was an American Woodcock, but wings in flight appeared too slender and were pointed, much like a shorebird, instead of more rounded wings of woodcock. Body was a bit more slender, not "football-like" like woodcock. Bill was long and thin. Overall color was brown, but without warm or tawny-brown coloration of woodcock. Also saw very evident white lines on upper wings as bird flew past and away from us.
